Loudoun County, VA- Detectives with the Loudoun County Sheriff's Office have released a composite sketch of one of the suspects involved in the April 16th home invasion robbery that occurred at a residence in the area of Taylorstown, Virginia. The suspects in the case, two White males and two black males, are possibly driving a gold or tan Nissan SUV (possibly a 2003 Nissan Murano).

The suspect in the composite sketch, a White male, is described as being 17 to 25-years-old, 5'9" to 5'10" tall, with brown eyes and short black hair. He was further described as having scruffy facial hair. He was wearing a long-sleeved gray shirt with graffiti style writing and baggy jeans. The second White male was said to be in his mid-20's with red hair, acne on his face, and was approximately 5'7" to 6' tall and weighs 170 pounds. One of the Black males was described as heavyset and was bald. The fourth suspect, also a Black male, was described as having a thin build and was approximately 5'9" to 5'10" tall with an angular shaped face.

Loudoun County Sheriff's Deputies responded to the home in the 13400 block of Loyalty Road around 11:30AM April 16th after the family contacted authorities. The residents reported that an unknown male knocked on their door and said he had a delivery. At that time he forced his way into the home along with three other suspects. The suspects brandished a weapon and the family of five, including two small children, was held against their will as the intruders removed items from the home. After the suspects left the home, one of the family members was able to run to safety and contact the Loudoun County Sheriff's Office. No one was injured during the robbery.
